

IN THE CLAIMS:

1. (currently amended) An entertainment card comprising a substrate, said substrate having a first side and an opposite second side, a depiction of a person on said first side, a transparent window formed in said substrate at a location which includes a portion of the anatomy of the depicted person, said window creating an absence of said portion from the depicted person, [[and]] said portion of the anatomy including a crease-like area which can be replaced by a user's digit(s) being placed against said window at said second side to simulate the absent portion in an appearance of bare skin, and said absence of said portion of said anatomy being thereby completed at said window independently of any other portion of said card.
2. (original) The card of claim 1 wherein said window is a cutout completely through said substrate whereby the user's digit(s) can extend partially through said cutout at least slightly beyond said first side to create a 3-D affect with the remainder of said substrate having a 2-D affect.
3. (original) The card of claim 1 wherein said portion of said anatomy is the buttocks.
4. (original) The card of claim 1 wherein said portion of the anatomy is the breasts whereby the user's digit(s) simulates cleavage.

5. (original) The card of claim 1 wherein said substrate is made of stiff shape-retaining material.
6. (original) The card of claim 5 wherein said substrate is made of a laminated material.
7. (original) The card of claim 5 wherein said substrate is of a size between a business card to an index card.
8. (original) The card of claim 5 wherein said substrate has a width in the range of about 2 to about 5 inches and a length in the range of about 3½ inches to about 8 inches.
9. (original) The card of claim 5 wherein said card is a business card.
10. (original) The card of claim 5 wherein card is of credit card size.
11. (original) The card of claim 5 wherein said card is of index card size.
12. (original) The card of claim 1 including printed material on one of said sides relating to information about the depicted person.
13. (original) The card of claim 12 wherein said printed material is on said second side.
14. (original) The card of claim 1 wherein said window is at least partially surrounded by clothing on the depicted person.

15. (original) The card of claim 1 wherein the depicted person is a female.
16. (original) The card of claim 1 wherein the depicted person is a male.
17. (original) The card of claim 1 including a transparent shield across said window.
18. (original) The card of claim 1 wherein the card is a greeting card.
19. (original) The card of claim 18 wherein said greeting card has a front page and a back page, and said window is in said back page.
20. (currently amended) A method of providing amusement with an enter-tainment card comprising the steps of providing the card of claim 1, and placing at least one of the user's digit(s) having a crease against the second side at the window so that the crease in the digit(s) simulates the anatomical crease-like area of the absent portion of the depicted person and the ~~bent finger~~ digit(s) gives the appearance of bare skin.
21. (original) The method of claim 20 wherein at least one digit is a bent finger.
22. (original) The method of claim 21 wherein the bent finger is the index finger, at the knuckle and the knuckle is oriented upwardly.

23. (original) The method of claim 22 wherein the window is a cutout, and pressing the bent finger against the cutout so that some of the bent finger extends outwardly of the cutout on the first side to create a 3-D affect.
24. (original) The method of claim 23 wherein the absent portion is the buttocks, and the bent finger thereby simulates the buttocks.
25. (original) The method of claim 23 wherein the absent portion includes at least a portion of a woman's breasts, and the bent finger simulates breast cleavage.
26. (original) The method of claim 20 wherein clothing on the depicted person surrounds at least part of the window.
27. (original) The method of claim 20 wherein the card is selected of a size ranging from a business card to an index card.
28. (original) The method of claim 20 wherein the card is a greeting card.
29. (original) The method of claim 28 wherein the greeting card has a front page containing a message and a back page having the window.